

Bio

Benjamin Riley is the founder of Cognitive Resonance, an organization that explains how generative AI works using the science of how humans think and learn. Prior to founding Cognitive Resonance, Ben founded and served as executive director of Deans for Impact, a national nonprofit organization that connects cognitive science to education.

He has also conducted research in New Zealand, worked on policy in Washington, D.C., and served as a deputy attorney general for the State of California. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Washington and his JD from the Yale Law School.